peals. Bail was fixed at $15,000 pending action of the appellate tribunal. Attorney Hawken pleaded for a light sentence, pointing out that the man had married the girl and done everything in his power to right the wrong, but that the girl's mind had been influenced by others and the indictment followed. Capt. Bertrand Emerson, assistant United States at torney, asked for a severe sentence, declaring the case one of the most flagrant violations of that particular law that had come under his notice. He charged the marriage was entered into with the hope of estaping punishment.
